SHIPPED POWDER THROUGH ADAMS EXPRESS COMPANY TO ARNOLD CITY MINER

Following the discovery of a shipment of blasting powder in a suit case through the Adams Express company and the subsequent arrest of the consigner and the man to whom the package belonged, a hearing was given Steve Echinko, and William Snyder last night before Justice of the Peace E. E. Rice, and both were held for court. Their bail was placed at $500 each, and Snyder's friends put up the bond for him, but the other man was taken to jail today by Constable Mathers of North Charleroi.

The powder belonged to Echinko, but was shipped by Snyder. Snyder was moving from Manor to Arnold City and Echinko, who was to board with him, was coming to this section. Snyder shipped his household goods by freight, then sent the suit case to Echinko's by express, the latter having preceded him.

Echinko had packed his suit case before leaving Manor, according to the evidence brought out at the trial last night, and Snyder, had no knowledge of what it contained. It was consigned to Snyder himself, though the Charleroi office. When it arrived here it was noticed that there were small black grains leaing out, and further investigation proved that it was powder. Upon opening the package Express Agent Jesse Wagoner found a bursted paper bag which had contained powder and about two quarts of the explosive in the suit case. Picks and other miner's tools were loosely packed in the case.

The package reached the local office last week and railroad officers were notified at once, and put to work on the case. Lieutenant W. J. Davis of the Monongahela division police department making information before Justice of the Peace Rice on Monday of this week. Yesterday P. R. R. Detcetive J. R. Chalfant went to Arnold City, where after some trouble he succeeded in locating both Snyder and Echinko, and brought them on to Charleroi for the hearing. Both plead guilty. Snyder said he did not know what was in the suit case when it was shipped, while the other claimed he did not know he was committing an offense.

THREE HOMICIDES WILL BE TRIED DURING MAY TERM

The grand jury for the May term of the criminal court will convene at Washington Monday. Local interest centers in the approaching term from the fact that Thomas Kinney, who shot and killed William Adams last December in Charleroi, will come up for trial. There are two other homicide cases to be tried at the coming term, that of Thomas Anderson for killing G[illegible]e Clark at Midway last month, and Tony Trocascio, charged with killing Vincenzo Gaimba at Courtney April 2.

MEMBER OF EXAMINING BOARD IN HIS REPORT SAYS THAT ECLIPSE WORKINGS DO NOT CONTAIN GAS

The difference that has arisen between the State mine inspectors and the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke company, over the condition of the Eclipse mine between Elco and Coal Centre is becoming more interesting. The m ine inspectors insist that the Eclipse mine is a dangerous mine and that in certain portions locked safety lamps should be used.

The company claims that the mine is not a gaseous mine and that locked safety lamps are not necessary.

Several of the miners have joined with the company in opposing the use of locked safety lamps. A few weeks since the court appointed R. M. Pollock of Star Junction; Richard Maize, of Ivanhoe and Joseph Gallagher of California, commissioners to take testimony and make an inspection of the mine and report to the court. Mr. Pollock has filed a minority report, in which he refuses to concur with the other commissioners. Mr. Pollock holds that locked safety lamps are not necessary, and that the mine is not sufficiently gaseous to be dangerous.

MINE TROUBLE SERIOUSLY AFFECTS RIVER TRAFFIC DURING PRESENT MONTH

April has been a comparatively slow month for rivermen along the Monongahela river, owing to the coal strike, which has caused a discontinuance of the usual heavy traffic. Several mines have signed up agreement, but some have not started operations yet, and so far there has been little increase in the coal shipments, since the first of the month when the miners quit work.

January, February and March were heavy months in coal shipments through Lock No. 4 and gave evidence that this year was to be an exceptionally good one, if a long drawn out strike did not interfere. In January there were 15,158,000 bushels locked through Lock No. 4; in February, 16,524,000 bushels, and in March, 19,405,000. According to lock officials this month will fall far short of these good records.

Not only has the strike caused the rivermen a period of inactivity but the southern markets cannot be supplied. In this way the trouble has been far reaching. On the Ohio at the present time there is a good coal shipping stage but there is little coal to be taken out of the Pittsburg harbor. Along the Monongahela river, which has the nine-foot stage the year around, coal can be shipped at any time, but only at periods can the black diamonds be shipped from the P ittsburg harbor owing to the lack of improvements on the Ohio river.

NO PARADE ON THE DAY OF OPENING

Everything is nearly ready for the opening of the Charleroi Church league basbeall season next Monday evening, when the Catholics and Christians will meet. The game will be called at 6 o'clock and Umpire "Days" Lindsay will officiate with the indicator. Both teams are said to be in good shape, although the weather for the past week has somewhat interfered with practice. Capt. Furnier of the Christians and Manager-Captain J. K. Rickey of the Catholics have about decided upon the lineups, and the prospects are for an exciting struggle.

The second game of the season will be played on the following evening, between the Washington Avenue Presbyterians and Episcopals, and on Wednesday evening the Baptists and Methodists will meet, the game having been postponed from May 6. The game of May 9, the date on which the circus appears, has also been postponed.

There will be no parade preceding the first game, it being thought wise to call this off. W. D. Pollock has been elected vice president of the league to take the place of Kerfoot W. Daly who resigned.

The couple will go on a trip to Blairsvlile later where they will spend a few days. Upon their return they will take up their residence with the bride's mother. Human Butterflies Perform in Great Forepaugh Circus.

The three Ty-Bell sisters, the most beautiful performers in the world and the most daring of aerialists, are presenting with the Great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Bros. shows this season the "Human Butterfly" act which created so much wonder in Europe last winter. During the recent tour of England, France and Germany they received the biggest salary which up to that time had never been paid for a single act.

Nothing like this act was ever seen before. Various inferior performances have masqueraded as aerial specialties, with the assistance of crude spectacular effects. They were merely common iron-jawed stunts of no interest whatever when analyzed. Holding by dental strength to slendor steelthreads, these Venus-like girls are elevated to the dome of the tent. By mean of invisible mechanism above them, they are made to fly, dart, piroute and circle like butterflies. They wear flowing angelic robes and have wings of fine spun glass. On these delicate backgounds of pure white, kaleidoscopic and pictorialeffects are accomplished by means of electric projectors and traveling spot lights.

Spectators sit amazed and bewildered by the irridescent splendor of the sight above them. At the same moment their blood tingles with suspense when they think of the danger of the act. It appeals not alone to morbid minds. It has a skill and a beauty about it that command profound attention.

There are performance to be seen high up in the dome of the tent that are entirely new to Americans. Among them are the Alphine family, wizards of the highwire in the truest sense of the term; the Fosters, Europe's best trapeze double somersaulters and vaulters; the Franks, Germany's best double swing experts; Ricardo Pearea family, premiers of Italy; Lafferty the great French aerial contortionist; the Great Runyons from England, the the Rigos from Italy the Taylor-Huttons of America and the Alvos, the funniest and most expert lofty bar artists of all the world. The Forepaugh and Sells Bros. shows exhibit in Charleroi Monday. May 9.

Mrs. Joshua Will Preach Tonight at the Baptist Ghurch.

Everything is in readiness for the "County Fair," which is to be held tonight and tomorrow night at Turner Hall for the benefit of the St. Mary's Episcopal church Guild. Tickets have had a ready sale and a good attendance is indicated for both nights.

MONONGAHELA BOY CHARGED WITH THEFT OF HORSES

Clymer Ford, a 14 year-old boy of Monongahela was arrested yesterday charged with stealing a horse and buggy. The boy had disappeared with the rig, which was found later. Search was made for him, and he was found in an underground passage way leading to the M. E. church. Some time ago some articles were stolen from the church, and Ford was charged with the theft. How an entrance was gained was a mystery, as the doors and windows were locked, but the underground passage way solves the mystery.

Professional Books Studied by Teachers of Charleroi Schools.

During the present year the teachers of the Charleroi schools have been following out an individual course of study, in perfecting themselves in certain branches they felt necessary. In all there were 50 professional books, and 25 magazines, all dealing with features of educational work. The work has been continued by the teachers since the term opened, and thus far each teacher has read from 3 to 6 books or magazines, and studies them separately to derive the most benefit.

William Yee Yek the Chinaman shot Satruday night intends to be in his laundry on Sixth street on Saturday, unless there is some backset. For a time it was feared that pneumonia would set in or other complications develop, but Dr. J. K. Smith, who is attending him, stated this morning, that now there was little to be feared. Yee Yek was given somewhat of a backset yesterday morning by the report conveyed to him that his laundry had been robbed. When he learned that all the money had been returned, however, and the temporary excitement wore off, no ill effects upon his condition were noticeable.

THE SPECTACLE IS IMPRESSIVE

Charleroi Paper Protests Against a Republican Candidate on a Democratic Platform

REAL PRAISE FOR PENROSE

Cheerfully Independent Paper Issues Timely Warning on Politics—Senator Penrose Recovers From Mild Indisposition and Declares Pennsylvania Republicans Will Make Their Own Gubernatorial Nomination.

One of the most impressive political spectacles of modern times is that of a Beaver Valley Republican asking the voters of that section to send him as their representative to the American congress because he has declared himself against protection and United States Senator Penrose As a fact Protection and Penrose are synonymous terms with the average Pennsylvanian and to be against one would necessarily force the Beaver Valley candidate to be against both An appeal against protection in any congressional district in Pennsylvania is not likely to be much of a rallying cry, but such an appeal particularly in that congressional district where almost every man, woman and child in every section of the several counties in the district are indebted almost beyond estimate for protection advantages sounds much like a boogy song designed only to frighten timid children. The anti-tariff and anti-Penrose platform of the ambitious candidate from the Beaver Valley region has provoked the wrath of all or nearly all the papers in that particular section regardless of politics Probably the most emphatic protest against the raw Democratic platform of the office-hunting Republican who represents the retired faction in his district is proclaimed by the Charleroi "Mail," one of the bright publications of the Beaver and Monongahela valleys. Here is the "Mail's" estimate of the Republican candidate on his ridiculous Democratic platform:

"Had this candidate been in Congress the extra session when the tariff bill was considered and passed in accordance with President Taft's pledges and the avowed policy of the Republican party, he would have stood out in opposition again the action of his Pennsylvania Republican colleagues on the tariff, and the almost unanimous sentiment of his constituency of the district, regardless of party affiliations. In other words, he is presumably a free trader, opposed to any protection to American industry.

"'Penroseism,' whatever that may be, is another issue against which this gentleman is arrayed. When Senator Penrose devoted his entire energies day and night for the preservation of the Pennsylvania industries and the protection that has built them up and kept the wheels of industry revolving, he earned the expressed gratitude of all interests in the State Even Lewis Emery, Jr., who had been a bitter political enemy of Senator Penrose, worked hand in glove with the former in the interests of the oil industry. As Mr. Emery represents the independent oil interests as opposed to the Standard, he emphasized the importance of protection for the independent producers, which is essential to their preservation.

"Senator Penrose's activity in behalf of the Pennsylvania industries was highly appreciated by the entire laboring and industrial interests of the State"

"No matter what other states want," the "Mail" concludes, "Pennsylvania wants its industries to keep on moving."

There are distinct indications that the effort now making at Washington to take the tariff entirely out of politics will be successful This will be distinctly in line with the policy of the President. It will make room for the President's tariff board and will likely be a death blow to a few demagogues and sycophants

The "Connellsville Courier," the recognized organ of the great army of coke workers of Pennsylvania, and cheerfully independent in its politics warns its readers against Democracy, which the paper calls "the party of opportunity" The "Courier" says:

"The Republican party is not without error, not without sin, not without a capacity for blundering, not without members who would sacrifice principle for power; but with all its weaknesses and all its faults, the party of the martyred Lincoln and McKinley has enunciated and defended doctrines which have preserved the anion and promoted the prosperity of the whole people in a remarkable degree.

"Above all, no Republican voter should be deceived by high-sounding talk about Democratic reform Democratic politicians are no better than Republican politicians, and most of them are infinitely worse. The Democratic party of today has no principles worth mentioning. It is like a ship without a rudder It is blown hither and thither by the windy declamation of a thrice-rejected Presidential ambition"

In announcing his retirement from public life Eugene Hale, United States senator from Maine, and one of the most conspicuous figures in American life, writes a letter to the Maine Republicans which is general in character and meaning and bears direct upon the people of every State in the union. Senator Hale says:

"It is furthermost important that Maine should send four Republican representatives to the next congress to avoid what may be the critical trial day for all Maine's industries and her business prosperity. Should the Democrats carry the next house or representatives within 90 days after the opening of the next congress a free tariff bill will be sent to the senate in which Maine's principal industries and interests will be marked for slaughter. Whoever recalls the situation under the Morrison bill and later under the Gorman-Wilson bill will fully realize this And this disaster to Maine can only be prevented by the Republicans retaining control in the next house of representatives. To this end a full Republican delegation from Maine in the next congress will be needed more than ever before and to secure this result all my sympathy and efforts are at the command of the party"

It will be recalled that Senator Hale stood fast and earnestly with Senator Penrose and others in forcing the conditions which restored prosperity in America. His warning, therefore, should have great weight

The Republicans of Pennsylvania will hear with pleasure that Senator Penrose, who had been sick for a week in Washington, is much improved. Before leaving for his Philadelphia home last week Senator Penrose said that the Republicans of Pennsylvania were entirely able to work out their own political salvation. He had not, he said, been consulted about the candidate to be nominated for governor by the Pennsylvania Republicans at their State convention in Harrisburg on June 22 That disposition, more than any other element in the character of Senator Penrose, has endeared him to the Pennsylvania Republicans. He has always been delighted to take the orders of his party.

WOMEN ARE WOMEN.

A Rather Roundabout Way to Prove the Proposition.

Men say women are angels; women say women are cats Let us pause a moment and reason upon this thing.

If women are angels—however, that does not seem to be the proper starting point. Let us try again.

If angels are cats—but, no; that is hardly reasonable, for angels have wings, and cats do not fly. We must begin again.

If women are cats—but that isn't possible, for cats do not talk, and how could a dumb animal express an opinion in words of a woman? Whatever cats may think, they never say a word about a woman, while women—well, women are not cats.

Now let us return to the first proposition.

If women are angels, they wouldn't say women are cats. Angels don't talk that way.

Once upon a time a man married a woman. He said she was an angel; the women said she was a cat. Happy man, not to know the difference between an angel and a cat!

Men say women are angels, and by this token women say angels are cats. Therefore, angels being cats, cats must be angels, and, both being the same, women are women.

Which is precisely what they are.—W. J. Lampton in Lippincott's.

TERRORS OF THE JUNGLE.

The Mosquitoes of Africa Are Worse Than the Lions.

"The African mosquitoes intoxicate you. They inject so much poison into you that you are dazed, your eyes roll and you stagger and speak thickly In a word, you're drunk," said a missionary.

"In the Nyassa country I'd always start getting ready for bed and the mosquitoes an hour before sunset. I'd set up my mosquito net with the utmost care. I'd clamp down its edges with valises and boxes. I'd light inside it three green wood fires, filling it with a bitter smoke that all insects are supposed to loathe.

"Finally I'd get in myself. I'd smoke big pipes of the black native tobacco, and I'd long miserably in that hot, smoky atmosphere for the dawn.

"Despite all my precautions quite 200 or 300 mosquitoes would get inside my net as soon as darkness fell. They were like a whirlwind in there. It couldn't have been worse. Their noise and their nipping made me feverish—made me really delirious at times.

"At last, in exhaustion, I'd get a few hours of troubled sleep, awakening for breakfast drunk from the poison injected by hundreds of tiny needles into my veins.

"No; it isn't the elephants or the giraffes that trouble the African hunter, but the skeeters."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Mendicant.

There are those who ascribe the word "mendicant" to the silly appellation put forth as a conundrum, meaning a poor wretch beyond the power of mending. But something very close to the term was in use as long ago as when Chaucer wrote his "Canterbury Tales" In the "Sompnoure's Tale" this occurs:

Therefore we "mendiants," we sely freres,
Ben wedded to poverte and continence.
To charitee, humblesse and abstinence,
etc.

The "sompnoure" of Chaucer was, of course, a summoner, or apparitor, and a person of low estate, and here we have, it is believed, the origin of the word, which came into common employment later.

Respectfully submitted this 15th day of April, A. D. 1910.

HARRY HORMELL,
Auditors.

To the Voters of Washington and Greene Counties:

I am not unmindful of the fact that the people of this country today demand of their public officials a high standard of service—that they want men to represent THEM. They are tired and disgusted with the system of politics which makes a man in public office entirely subservient to the dictates of a boss or a machine. They are unwilling longer to take a man for public office simply because he wears a certain party label. They demand the election of men to public office who as individuals possess the character to stand by them irrespective of any party affiliations, of any machine, and particularly of any interests.

The greatest public question today relates to the efficiency and integrity of administration. It is no one-section question, whether the people shall be imposed upon or not; it is an issue of justice and human rights everywhere that can be no more ignored than a conflagration. Recognizing this condition and being in sympathy myself with the desires of the people, I want to say to the voters, to you whom I ask for support, that if nominated and elected I WILL SERVE faithfully the interests of my constituents.

I submit my record in public, political and business life as a guarantee of this. I point to the fact as an evidence of my sympathy with the Progressive Movement for better things in politics and legislation, that I have always been opposed to machines and and to bosses. My whole political activity has been devoted to fighting this system of political domination. Everything I have secured has been by fighting against, rather than fighting for, machines and bosses. This is my record. It is known to the voters of this senatorial district and it is the best evidence I can give that in the future you will find me fighting a system of politic swhich does not represent the people directly.

If nominated and elected State Senator in this district I will go to Harrisburg free from all entangling alliances, political, corporate, or of any nature whatsoever. I will be free to give my attention and best endeavors to legislation which will be for the benefit of all classes, the farmer, the merchant, the miner, the laboring men of all classes, the man who earns his bread by the sweat of his brow, and also the man of capital.

I speak freely and openly on this question because I recognize the fact that the people today feel their responsibility and will not elect any man to office in whom they cannot trust their interests. I hope to not only follow the people in their efforts along this line, but as a representative in the highest legislative body in this Commonwealth and of the best constituency of the Commonwealth, to help to lead the people to a higher standard of legislation and governmental policy. I am a progressive Republican. I believe in the fundamental principles of that party and am in hearty sympathy with every movement which has for its object the raising of the standard of political morality and the enactment of legislation which will be honestly for the people's interests.

I am, very truly yours,

John W. Hallam.

FOR CONGRESS

JOHN K. TENER

OF CHARLEROI

Subject to the Decision of the Republican Voters of the Twenty-Fourth District at the Primaries June 4

McShane's Platform.

"Charlie" McShane, of Lincoln Park, Allegheny county, who is well known in and a frequent visitor to Charleroi because of his connection with the Catholic Total Abstinence Union, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for State Senate of the Forty-fourth district at the June primaries. Mr. McShane is a lawyer, a newspaper man and an ardent worker in the temperance cause as well as for everything in the way of civic improvement. His attitude on the temperance question is positive and pronounced, and on the issue of local option he expresses himself, in case he is nominated and elected, thusly:

If local option should beome a question in the next Legislature I will support a township, borough or ward local option bill as this will give the people the right to remonstrate by their vote for or argainst the saloon in residential sections, as well as a slow education of the people on this subject; and will be fair to the saloon keeper. As it will take many years to eradicate the saloon entirely, and as the wave grows in strength, the liquor man can safeguard himself by saving the money that he puts into improvements—or start in some other business, so that when the temperance wave reaches him his financial interests will be safe.

Mr. McShane has been an active and consistent temperance worker all his life and never has, like former Congresman E. F. Acheson, dealt with the liquor interests for political or personal advancement. When Mr. Acheson was assisting and consenting to the repeal of the special prohibitory act of Monongahela and Carroll township, which added fourteen more saloons to the county, Mr. McShane was helping to organize and promote Catholic Total Abstinence Unions throughout the Pittsburg diocese. His views on local option are sound and logical, and meet with the approval of a majority of the people. Mr. McShane is clear sighted enough to recognize actual conditions, and to realize that temperance, like any other social movement, is a matter of evolution, and that a community cannot be made any better by legislation than the people who compose it.

Lost Opportunity.

With a boating stage in the Ohio river, and no coal in the Pittsburg habror to go out on account of the strike, an opportunity is lost to this district that may have a deteriorating effect the whole year. Should the season be a dry one as weather sharps are predicting, the mines along the river, even after they do start, may be idle a large portion of the time for want of a boating stage in the Ohio. It all depends upon the vagaries of the weather.

All this emphasizes the importance of the canalizing of the Ohio river, and its relation to the industrial and commercial life of this community. With a boating stage from Pittsburg to Cairo the delay this month would only be incidental; now it is vital, and because of it local industry stands a chance of being hampered the balance of the summer and fall. There is no help for it now, but the situation shows most clearly how important it is to continue the river improvement policy on the Ohio inaugurated by the present Congress.

Government by Commission.

With the spread of the Des Moines and Galveston plans of government by commission and the adoption of the plan in various forms by over seventy cities in the United States, the prediction is made that it will in due course of time be universally adopted as the model form of municipal government. By it graft, corruption and practical politics are eliminted, and the business of the cities are conducted on purely business principles at a great saving to the taxpayers and a corresponding gain in puplic efficiency to the people. The recent experience with the wholesale grafting on the part of Pittsburg councilmen has given an impetus to the government by commission plan in Pennsylvania, and it will not be long before there will be widespread agitation for an amendment to the constitution to permit the adoption of the plan.

The Des Moies plan is the simplest and most Democratic method of government ever devised. Five men are elected to conduct the city government, one of whom is mayor. The people have the right by vote to oust any of them, or to compel them to enact certain measures, or to veto them. Everything is up to the people, and it a government by popular sentiment. It will soon become as universal as the secret ballot, which was first advocated in this country by the late Henry George in the '80's.

ELECTRIC SPARKS

Having definitely settled the question, "What is whisky," the government is now taking up the investigation of "what is wine?" Wine is a mocker.

Washington is to have a centennial this fall and Charleroi is to have a big celebration the Fourth of July. With these and the murder trials going on in the county this year, there should not be lack of excitement.

We never saw a moving picture house yet that moved, unless you class a tent show as a house.

A meteor fell in Mexico and caused a forest fire. Another one on the comet.

The weather as a matter of course broke records this week by having it freezing cold at Atlanta, Ga., and at the same time more than summer-like in New Foundland. The comet of course.

The Democrats are winning a few things in a few States. Possibly by reason of the comet.

We were supposed to have rain—no, snow—no, warm weather, but the weather man changed his mind and give us a litttle comet.

A Useless Invention.

"This new collection box," argued the inventor, "has some unique advantages. When you drop in a quarter or more it doesn't make a sound. Drop in a dime and it tinkles a bell, a nickel blows a whistle, and a penny fires a shot. And when you don't drop in anything the box takes your picture."

"No, thanks," said the pastor wearily; "I already have pictures of my entire congregation."—Louisville Herald.

politics. He was a member of the Ohio legislature and once made a campaign for governor of his native state. In 1901 he removed to Muskogee, I. T., and hung out his shingle as a lawyer. He soon gave up his law practice and engaged in railroad building and other construction work. He is a man of some means and has never shown a disposition to antagonize wealth. He insists, however, that public service corporations must pay their fair share of taxes. Salad Rolls.

Materials.—One dozen fresh Parker House rolls, one cupful of cold chicken, one cupful of chopped celery and enough mayonnaise to mix well.

Way of Preparing.—Open the rolls and scoop out a pocket in each. Brush with butter and run in the oven for a few minutes. Cool and fill with a mixture of the other ingredients. Place on a bread plate and garnish with fringed celery.—National Food Magazine.

Some Consolation.

A detective once said it was all wrong to suppose that the professional housebreaker works with coolness and calculation. On the contrary, he usually works in terror and haste, takes too much swag from one room and too little from another and sometimes overlooks the silver in carrying off the electro.—London Saturday Review.

MISSED ONE POINT.

The Lady Told Him What More He Could Have Said.

"I am going to tell you the truth about yourself," he said.

"Go on," said the young and ambitious actress.

"I have in my time had rare opportunities to observe beautiful, graceful and talented women, and I violate no confidence in saying that you are the queen of them all. You unite in your lovely person that peculiar magnetism which lays audiences at your feet. Your genius, shining through all the deficiencies of stagecraft, enables you to triumph over every obstacle. So supreme are you that you have the right to rise above all conventionalities, to marry, to love, to discard whom you please, and no one will dare to criticise. Your work will live. You are the very personification of the highest art United with this your perfection of beauty gives you the just title to a lasting fame"

"Is all that true?" she asked softly

"Absolutely Would you have me say more? What more could I say?" She sighed.

"You might," she answered, "have mentioned my clothes and my figure." —Puck.

Disinterested.

Lord Monboddo, an eminent member of the Scotch judiciary and one of the clear cut figures in Boswell's immortal "Life of Johnson," was a great bear in his youth and in his later years brilliant and learned if whimsical man.

He was a friend of the Garricks and one day was their guest at their villa at Hampton Court when Hannah More was also visiting there They were walking together in the garden when his lordship astonished the fair and sprightly Hannah by a declaration of love and an offer of his heart and hand. Meeting with a positive refusal, he soon returned to the house and made a clean breast of it to Mrs. Garrick.

"I am very sorry for this refusal," he said in conclusion. "I should have liked so much to teach that nice girl Greek."

Our Languages.

What a lot of languages we talk, even if we talk only English! I was assailed by a man across the luncheon table with a language about a cup tie final and confessed that it was quite unintelligible. Then another man talked about golf, which is another language. And then the woman's language elbows these columns "The Countess —— wore a sea green cloth skirt with a bolero of the same color and a white marabou stole, and a black taffeta bow garnished her huge hat of burnt tagel straw." It is a fine example of women's slang. But to the man it means nothing—but expense.—London Outlook.

SLIP FOR A BABY.

It Is In One Piece and Has Two Seams and Is Easily Made.

A charming slip for a baby that is in every sense of the word a "one piece frock" is made after an admirable pattern. The little garment is cut out from one piece of material, a round hole cut out for the neck and an opening down the back for four or five inches to allow the slip to go over the baby's head.

There are two seams, from the hem of the frock to the wrist of the sleeve, one on each side.

This pattern may be used for any material. A slip of finest white nainsook was made after this model. Around the neck was a narrow band of hand embroidery—a spray of forgetmenots and tiny leaves in fine white mercerized thread—brierstitched to the frock. The sleeves were trimmed in the same manner at the wrist, and both neck and sleeves were finished with a frill of fine narrow lace.

A panel was outlined both back and front by a scroll design of forgetmenots and French knots running from the hem in front over the shoulders to the hem in back.

A three inch hem brierstitched finished the slip, and it was fastened down the back with tiny pearl ball buttons

A cap was made to be worn with this slip, and it was of fine white lawn embroidered all around the edge with a scroll of tiny forgetmenots, and the same blossoms were scattered all over the entire surface. The edge was scalloped and buttonholed and finished with a frill of lace gathered to the underside of the bonnet. This made a soft frame for the baby face.

A lining of thin forgetmenot blue silk and one of shell pink came with the bonnet and two sets of huge rosettes of soft satin ribbon, one of blue and one of shell pink. The rosettes were fastened to the bonnet over each ear, and a single piece of ribbon went under the chin and fastened under a rosette with a tiny gold safety pin.

When the blue rosettes were worn they brought out the blue of the baby's eyes, and the pink ones heightened the color of the soft little face.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

To prevent stiffness of the muscles and joints they should be frequently rubbed with oil.

Hairdressers say that the hair must be worn flat on top and very broad at the sides and back. The low, broad forehead is the effect which must be attained to be fashionable.

For red hands a good lotion consisting of honey one ounce, lemon juice one ounce and eau de cologne one ounce will both soften and whiten the hands and may be applied with benefit at night just before going to bed.

Obnoxious as it may seem to many, nevertheless the eating of onions will make a noticeable change in the complexion because onions contain a certain per cent of arsenic, the same as lettuce. The onion is naturally soporific and induces sleep when eaten at night without harmful results. Lettuce has the same effect if not eaten with vinegar.

Choking and strangling on liquids are somewhat similar, yet the former is more dangerous. If a baby merely strangles on milk, quickly raise one arm above its head and draw the arm tightly. This overcomes the trouble at once. It sometimes relieves choking when caused by food, but a slap on the back between the shoulders will more quickly dislodge any food in the throat.

In the summer season it is not uncommon for persons going into the woods to be poisoned by contact with dogwood, ivy or the poison oak. The severe itching and smarting which are thus produced may be relieved by first washing the parts with a solution of saleratus, two teaspoonfuls to a pint of water, and then applying cloths with extract of hamamelis. Take a dose of epsom salts internally or a double cachet powder. The cure is immediate

Mrs. Taft's Cow Still Favored.

Mrs Taft's cow continues to graze peacefully on the White House lawn, notwithstanding the national astonishment and some sly ridicule. The president's wife has her convictions, and one of them is that if you want good milk and cream you must keep your moolley and keep it in condition by the most recent scientific teachings. Thomas Jefferson used to keep blooded cows on the White House lawn because he could not abide any milk except that which came from his own stock. Lincoln kept several cows, but until Mrs. Taft purchased a blue ribbon Jersey a cow had not been seen near the White House in forty-five years.

If You Wish to Be Popular—

Don't contradict people even if you are sure you are right.

Don't be inquisitive about the affairs of even your most intimate friend.

Don't underrate anything because you don't possess it.

Don't believe that everybody else in the world is happier than you.

Don't declare that you have never had any opportunities in life.

Don't believe all the evil you hear.

Scour the Irons.

One point in which the novice in ironing often falls lies in not having the irons perfectly clean before beginning work To do really good work begin by scouring the irons thoroughly with soap and water; then dry thoroughly with a soft rag. They must not be dried on the fire, as this creates an immediate rust, which works off on the clothes.

FATAL CUPIDITY.

A Tragic Case of Treasure Hunting in Egypt.

A certain Egyptian native discovered the entrance of a tomb in the floor of his stable and at once proceeded to worm his way down the tunnel. This was the end of the man. His wife, finding that he had not returned two hours or so later, went down the newly found tunnel after him. That was the end of her also In turn three other members of the family went down into the darkness, and that was the end of them.

A native official was then called, and, lighting his way with a candle, penetrated down the winding passage The air was so foul that he was soon obliged to retreat, but he stated that he was just able to see in the distance ahead the bodies of the unfortunate peasants, all of whom had been overcome by what he quaintly described as "the evil lighting and bad climate." Various attempts at the rescue of the bodies having failed, we gave orders that this tomb should be regarded as their sepulcher and that its mouth should be sealed up.

According to the natives there was evidently a vast hoard of wealth stored at the bottom of this tomb, and the would be robbers had met their death at the hands of the demon in charge of it, who had seized each man by the throat as he came down the tunnel and had strangled him.—A. E P. Weigall in Putnam's.

Landsman and Sailor.

To the landsman the sea must always possess dangers that to the sailor appear only as casual phenomena upon which to exercise his skill. The prayer book has a special petition for the safety of those who go down to the sea in ships, and every one who ventures to leave the shore goes forth with a consciousness of awe at his own daring. Yet in the intricate complexity of modern civilization safety on land and safety at sea have walked by no means with equal step. Every morning brings us some story of death or accident on land, while the great passenger ships come and go in monotonous regularity, bringing no reports more stirring than those of high seas that have kept them from making new records. With the present madness for speed and its attendant recklessness our streets demand constant alertness if one would cross them with safety. Speed at sea has come through larger and more stoutly constructed ships. So the familiar old story of the sailorman at sea in a storm who, serene in his consciousness of ample sea room, piously ejaculated, "God help the poor folks ashore tonight!" is not wholly fantastic.—L. Frank Tooker in Century

Eccentric Count Bertrand.

Count Bertrand, who lived in Paris, was a very eccentric man, and to one of his eccentricities he ascribed his long life. Once a year he would betake himself to bed and stay there for three months. On these occasions he would see no one but his servant, who brought him his meals, and even him he forbade to speak. Just before the Germans began the siege of Paris the count went to bed, and the servant, true to his injunctions, said nothing of the events going on around him. One day the bread proved so bad the count demanded an explanation, whereby, of course, he learned that Paris was encompassed by the enemy. Springing out of bed, the count paced the floor, repeating, "What should a Bertrand do under such circumstances?" Suddenly he stopped, exclaiming, "We should go to bed!" and to bed he went and stayed there until the siege was over.

ORIENTAL SERVANTS.

All Around Ability of the Indispensable "Boy" In India.

In these days of loud wailing about the haughty domestic, exorbitant wages and small returns it is soothing to recall the efficiency and submissive service of the oriental servant.

In India the indispensable "boy" does everything—"boy" being a generic name regardless of age or native dignity—receiving in remuneration the equivalent of $12 to $14 a month at the most. He buys your railroad tickets, checks your luggage, settles the clamors of luggage coolies, gives your tips and shoos away the hordes of beggars, telegraphs to hotels for you rooms and takes care of them when you get there, makes the bed, brings the afternoon tea, stands behind your chair at table and serves you, brings your account when you leave and wrangles for you over its inevitable extortions.

At the dak bungalows he forages for your meals and, if necessary, cooks them. He produces washmen, sewing men and all sorts of dealers in everything on demand He makes up your bed on sleeping cars and replenishes your supply of ice and soda He runs your errands, cleans your boots and hats, darns your stockings and mends your clothes.

When you walk abroad, he attends you and directs you to the bazaars where you will be robbed least, receiving his commission later from an appreciative proprietor.

For every rupee intrusted to him for general expenditure he renders an account, and though he doubtless robs you gently he does not let others do it (and it is distinctly advantageous to be robbed by one person rather than a score).

He is silent and noiseless, salaams whenever you speak to him and never enters your presence with his shoes on or his turban off.

And finally, his multifarious day ended, he wraps himself in his shawl and sleeps across your threshold.—New York Tribune.

A FALSE ECONOMY.

The Housewife Who Boils Her Window Shades.

Here is a new one for the frugally minded housewife:

"Whenever I have old window shades which have become too soiled to put up again," writes a housewife in a certain magazine for women, "I take them off the rollers, give them a thorough boiling, then wash and dry and iron the same and"—now listen to this; they don't turn out to be piano scarfs or mantel drapes or even little girls' petticoats, but says this careful person—"I have excellent cloths, which are good for dusting, cleaning windows or drying cut glass." Now, will you listen to that—"excellent dust cloths"—and how would you like the task of boiling up a lot of old window shades? 'Twould be a pleasant undertaking, wouldn't it?

There can be no question that the effort to economize is in every way commendable and, dear knows, rare enough in these days of prodigality, but there is a limit past which economy ceases to be a virtue.

There are women with whom economy has become almost a mania.

Doubtless she of the boiled window shades is suffering from such a malady, else she wouldn't be boiling up her old shades to make dusters when she ought to be standing in front of her looking glass curling her front hair or sitting down and studying her Sunday school lesson.

But this is only one example of the false economy that saves and makes over to poor purpose. Economy is doubtless a poor name for this particular sort of thing. It is, in truth, more of an overpowering desire to make something out of nothing, which generally ends in exactly the other, very much the other, way about.

Old dresses made over at great labor and expense and leftover food reheated with more eggs and butter than a new dish would be worth are examples of this same mania, which possesses many a good woman.

Song of the Pirate.

A pirate, a pirate, a pirate I will be!
In stormy ways
I'll spend my days—
A pirate's life for me!
Upon the main
I'll look for gain.
I'll sail the broad seas o'er.
I'll store my hold with gold, and then
I'll make the people tremble when
They see me come ashore!

A pirate, a pirate, a pirate bold am I!
Where people shriek
On decks that reek
I'll swing my cutlass high!
I'll swiftly sail
Before the gale.
I'll sweep the stormy sea.
And when the day's dark work is done
I'll reef my sails and meekly run
To kneel at mother's knee.
—S. E. Kiser in New York Tribune.

An Appropriate Sign.

Mrs. Smith—I see the contractor has put the sign "Sold" on the new house next door. Mr. Smith—Yes, and the sign "Stung" should be put on the buyer.—Kansas City Journal.

Don't trust the fellow who has a vacant look in a poker game. He generally has a full house.—Philadelphia Record.

Planning Ahead.

"The 'after parties,'" said the prospective bride, "will cost about $200 annually, flowers as much more and bonbons, say, $100. Certainly we can marry on $600 a year."

"And have a snug surplus," suggested her dad, "for such incidentals as grub and clothes and house rent."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Still Possible.

"Uncle, can't I be a pirate when I grow up?"

"Sure you can, son. What do you want to pirate—books or plays?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Dean Swift's Retort.

A young advocate said to Dean Swift, "Supposing, doctor, that the parsons and the devil should litigate a cause, which party would you think would gain it?" "The devil, no doubt," was the dean's reply, "as he would have all the lawyers on his side."

The Aristocrats.

"Are there degrees of rank in the servants' hall?"

"To be sure. Maids who have charge of dogs won't associate with maids who look after children."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Honesty is the best policy, although it may have the deferred dividend clause attachment.—Judge.

A DEAD STOMACH
Of What Use Is It?

Thousands? yes hundreds of thousands of people throughout America are taking the slow death treatment daily.

They are murdering their own stomach, the best friend they have and in their sublime ignorance they think they are putting aside the laws of nature.

This is no sensational statement; it is a startling fact, the truth of which any honorable physician will not deny.

These thousands of people are swallowing daily huge quantities of pepsin and other strong digesters made especially to digest the food in the stomach without any aid at all from the digestive membrane of the stomach.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets relieve distressed stomach in five minutes: they do more. Taken regularly for a few weeks they build up the run down stomach and make it strong enough to digest its own food. Then indigestion, belching, sour stomach and headache will go.

Mi o na stomach tablets are sold by druggists everywhere and by Piper Bros. who guarantees them. 50 cents a box.

Entire Stock to be Sold by the Saville Salvage Company of Pittsburg

We bought too heavily. That's where the trouble started. Expecting a much heavier business than usual, we confess that we used poor judgement in overstocking ourselves. But Easter came too early and the weather, as everyone knows, was unseasonable, with the inevitable result that our shelves and counters are filled to overflowing with thousand's of dollars' worth of brand new merchandise. If we could only get a few week's of grace we could do the business at the usual profit. But the creditors have given us time before and will no longer wait for their money. That is the situation that stares us in the face. We simply must raise the money and for this purpose the creditors have agreed to sell the stock for ten days and secure their money. It is no question of profits. It is a life and death struggle to pay off our indebtedness rather than being forced to the wall. We are bending every energy and resource at our command to pay the bills. We have made the most extensive preparation both in the advertising and the handling of the crowds of any sale of any kind that has heretofore been conducted in this town, to our knowledge. It will pay you to come miles to secure these values, that will go actually at less than the cost of making.

Free Fare To Sale

On purchases of $1.50 street car fare will be paid up to 5 miles---on purchases of $5.00 fare up to 25 miles.

Don't compare this sale with sales you have probably attended in the past. It is a sale conducted by the Saville Salvage Company of Pittsburg, a legitimate and bonafide smashing out of every article in a clearance conducted by ourselves with the help of our creditors. For this reason and because of the ridiculously little prices asked for the new, staple goods there is bound to be a storm of competition. Do not be surprised to see the town plastered with sale signs of every color under the sun. Be sure you see the BIG BLUE SIGN with the words CREDITOR'S ADJUSTMENT SALE before you enter. Bring this advertisement with you and ask for the prices listed. Remember we positively guarantee you a saving, not on ten or fifteen articles, BUT ON EVERY ONE IN THE ENTIRE STORE. Even after you have bought, if you find yon can beat our prices anywhere—a very slim chance indeed—all you have to do is to bring back the goods and demand your money. A single glance inside this store will show how the crowds will jam a sale if the values are as advertised. If you find the doors closed, be patient, as we will do the best we can. An extra large staff of experienced salespeople will wait on you and the doors will be opened as quickly as possible. Kindly bear in mind that no goods will be sold to children or sold on credit.

Sale Opens Friday, April 29th, 1910, at 10 A. M. Sharp.

These prices represent but a comparatively few of the thousands of Bargains at the store. Lack of space prevents their being given here. We are forced to raise the cash and save our good name rather than keep the goods with failure staring us in the face.

THE PILLORY.

An English Writer's Reflections Upon Public Punishment.

Perhaps one of the few really democratic institutions ever created was the pillory. I do not say that it was a humane institution, though it was certainly more humane than our system of silent imprisonment. But being humane has nothing to do with being democratic. You may have humane and inhumane democracies, just as you may have humane and inhumane despots.

The point is that the pillory was a real appeal to the people. If it was cruel it was because the people were cruel or perhaps justly indignant. The people threw dead cats (the less humanitarian, I believe, threw live cats) but they could throw bouquets and crowns of laurel if they liked. Sometimes they did. The argument about the old public punishments cuts both ways. The publicity was an additional risk for the government as well as an additional risk for the prisoner, and this is specially true of the executions for treason. It was no small thing that half a million men might possibly treat as a martyr a man whom the king was treating as a murderer, that the prince had to concede to every obscure ruffian exactly what that ruffian probably wanted most—fame.—G. K. Chesterton in London News.

A Skeleton In Every Closet.

The expression "There is a skeleton in every closet" is said to have its origin in the fact that a soldier once wrote to his mother, who complained of her unhappiness, to have some sewing done for him by some one who had no cares or troubles. At last the mother found a woman who seemed to have no troubles, but when she told her business the woman took her to a closet containing a skeleton and said: "Madam, I try to keep my troubles to myself, but every night I am compelled by my husband to kiss this skeleton, who was once his rival. Think you, then, I can be happy?"

COLOR WORDS.

Red Seems to Be the Favorite With Most of the Great Writers.

Upon tabulating the words used by Shakespeare referring to colors it is revealed that out of every hundred color words [illegible] be classed as red. Next follow [illegible] twenty black, seven yellow, seven green and [illegible] this Shakespeare's favorite color was red, and [illegible] show that this is the favorite color of nearly all great writers. After red, it is the color word most frequently employed by Tennyson.

In all great works of human interest red predominates, as it is the color of the very strongest of our passions and impulses—the color of hot blood. There is no color so warm, so full of joy and life, so overflowing with vitality.

Red is the color of glowing iron—of heat and passion. It intensifies and hastens the growth of trees, while at the same time it quickens all rotting and decay. Plants grown under red glass will grow four times as quickly as under white light, and grow to four times their normal height.

Red in excess has an evil effect. For example, an excess of red light makes one irritable and nervous. In excess red produces homicidal mania—the desire to kill. The effect of red upon various animals is well known, it having the power of enraging the bull, the tiger and the turkey.—London Scraps.

The Bishop's Visit.

Bishop (who has "looked in" at rural Sunday school)—Now, children, can any of you tell what is meant by the visitation of the bishop? Little Girl (after a long pause)—Please, sir, an affliction sent from heaven.—London Telegraph.

The Great Change.

"The change in price," replied Tommy.—Exchange.

Why the Whistle Howled.

Passenger (on branch line)—Say, why does the engine always set up such a piteous howl at this particular spot? Guard—Ah! It was here the engineer first met his wife.—Kansas City Journal.

The Poor Woman.

"He climbed almost to the top of the ladder—and then fell off."

"What was the trouble?"

"There was a woman at the bottom of it."—Life.

ANCIENT POISON LORE

Some Obscure Facts Revealed by Study of Toxicology.

THE PENALTY OF THE PEACH.

A Document of Antiquity That Shows the Egyptians Knew How to Make and Use Prussic Acid—The Poisons of Ancient Greece and Rome.

In the mythology of Greece there was a somber saga which declared that in the far north, later described as Colchis, there dwelt some sorcerers—children of the sun. Of these Hecate possessed vast knowledge of poisonous herbs, which passed to her daughter Medea, who administered drugs to that dragon which guarded the Golden Fleece and urged Jason to gladiator-like achievements.

Menes, one of the oldest of the Egyptian kings, and Attalus Phylometer, the last king of Pergamus, undoubtedly possessed wide knowledge of medicinal plants. Attalus Phylometer compounded medicines and experimented with poisons. He was familiar with hyoscyamus, aconite, veratrum, conium and others.

Mithradates Eupator went further than either of these, however, as he prepared the famous mixture theriaca, composed of fifty-four ingredients, and which in later days sold at a great price. There is further evidence of the chemical knowledge of the Egyptians as disclosed in embalming and various technical works.

The most interesting feature of the poison lore of Egypt, however, is the fact that the Egyptians were acquainted with prussic acid, one of the most deadly poisons. They distilled it from certain plants and trees, notably the peach. In the Louvre there is an ancient Egyptian papyrus on which has been deciphered:

"Pronounce not the name of I. A. O. under the penalty of the peach."

This is supposed to be a death warning to those who might be tempted to reveal mysteries in connection with the religious rites of the priests.

It is certain that the Romans learned of prussic acid from the Egyptians, for history has it that in the reign of Tiberius a Roman knight accused of treason drank poison and fell dead at the feet of the senators.

In ancient Greece poison was the favorite method of capital punishment and suicide, and it is of interest that self destruction was considered by the Greeks as an exemplary means of freeing the soul from the body. Valerius Maximus relates that he "saw a woman of quality in the island of Ceos who, having lived happily for ninety years, obtained leave to take a poisonous draft, lest by living longer she should happen to have a change in her good fortune."

Nicander of Colophon (204-138 B. C.) wrote the most ancient works extant on the subject of poisons. In one treatise he described the effects of snake venom, in another he considered the properties of opium, henbane, certain fungi, colchicum, aconite and cantium and recommended antidotes for them.

Dioscorides (40-90 A. D.) described the effects of cantharides, sulphate of copper, mercury, lead and arsenic. He described poisons under three heads—animal poisons, poisons from plants and mineral poisons.

Poison lore—"poison-lehre," as it was long called—was considered a forbidden subject for many ages. Galen in his work "On Antidotes" remarks that the only authors who dared to write of poisons were Orpheus, Theologus, Morus, Mendesius the younger, Heliodorus of Athens, Aratus and a few others. Unfortunately none of their treatises is now in existence.

The sacred writings of India show that the art of poisoning was used for suicide, robbery and revenge, and here we learn that the original cattle poisoners lived in India. The Asiatics knew arsenic, aconite, opium and other poisons.

The ancient Hebrews were acquainted with certain poisons, and "vosch" and "chema" seem to have been the words used as general terms for poison.

The death of Socrates, Demosthenes, Hannibal and Cleopatra testify to the pharmaceutical knowledge of the ancients. Phrysa poisoned the Queen Statira in the reign of Artaxerxes II (B. C. 405-359) by cutting food with a poisoned knife.

The professional poisoners arose early in the Christian era. It is recorded that Agrippina (A. D. 26) refused to eat apples at the table of her father-in-law Tiberius through fear of poison.—New York Times.

How We Change.

"Did you notice that woman's expression just then?" queried a traveler on an elevated train, and he pointed to a handsomely gowned woman whom the exigencies of transportation had placed directly opposite an aged and not too clean man. The old man was about to conceal a big red handkerchief.

"That old fellow," continued the traveler, "just took a pinch of snuff and took it vigorously, and the operation appeared to give the woman nausea. Disgust was written all over her face. Think of it! A habit condemned universally by refinement today and once the habit of king, courtier and social exquisite. The jeweled snuff-box—what a treasure it was! And now—well, we do change, don't we?"—New York Globe.

The taxidermist makes an honorable living at a skin game.—Philadelphia Record.

THE CHARLEROI MAIL

Entered second class mail at Charleroi, June 15, 1900, according to Act of Congress of March 8 1879

VOL. X. NO. 214. CHARLEROI, WASHINGTON CO., PA., THURSDAY, APRIL 28, 1910. One Cent

SHIPPED POWDER THROUGH ADAMS EXPRESS COMPANY TO ARNOLD CITY MINER

Following the discovery of a shipment of blasting powder in a suit case through the Adams Express company and the subsequent arrest of the consigner and the man to whom the package belonged, a hearing was given Steve Echinko, and William Snyder last night before Justice of the Peace F. P. Rice and both were held for court. Their bail was placed at $500 each, and Snyder's friends put up the bond for him, but the other man was taken to jail today by Constable Mathers of North Charleroi.

The powder belonged to Echinko, but was shipped by Snyder. Snyder was moving from Manor to Arnold City and Echinko, who was to board with him, was coming to this section. Snyder shipped his household goods by freight, then sent the suit case to Echinko's by express, the latter having preceded him.

Echinko had packed his suit case before leaving Manor, according to the evidence brought out at the trial last night, and Snyder, had no knowledge of what it contained. It was consigned to Snyder himself, though the Charleroi office. When it arrived here it was noticed that there were small black grains leaing out, and further investigation proved that it was powder. Upon opening the package Express Agent Jesse Wagoner found a bursted paper bag which had contained powder and about two quarts of the explosive in the suit case. Picks and other miner's tools were loosely packed in the case.

The package reached the local office last week and railroad officers were notified at once, and put to work on the case. Lieutenant W. J. Davis of the Monongahela division police department making information before Justice of the Peace Rice on Monday of this week. Yesterday P. R. R. Detcetive J. R. Chalfant went to Arnold City, where after some trouble he succeeded in locating both Snyder and Echinko, and brought them on to Charleroi for the hearing. Both plead guilty. Snyder said he did not know what was in the suit case when it was shipped, while the other claimed he did not know he was committing an offense.

THREE HOMICIDES WILL BE TRIED DURING MAY TERM

The grand jury for the May term of the criminal court will convene at Washington Monday. Local interest centers in the approaching term from the fact that Thomas Kinney, who shot and killed William Adams last December in Charleroi, will come up for trial. There are two other homicide cases to be tried at the coming term, that of Thomas Anderson for killing George Clark at Midway last month, and Tony Trocascio, charged with killing Vincenzo Gaimba at Courtney April 2.

MEMBER OF EXAMINING BOARD IN HIS REPORT SAYS THAT ECLIPSE WORKINGS DO NOT CONTAIN GAS

The difference that has arisen between the State mine inspectors and the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke company, over the condition of the Eclipse mine between Elco and Coal Centre is becoming more interesting. The mine inspectors insist that the Eclipse mine is a dangerous mine and that in certain portions locked safety lamps should be used.

The company claims that the mine is not a gaseous mine and that locked safety lamps are not necessary.

Several of the miners have joined with the company in opposing the use of locked safety lamps. A few weeks since the court appointed R. M. Pollock, of Star Junction. Richard Maize, of Ivanhoe and Joseph Gallagher of California, commissioners to take testimony and make an inspection of the mine and report to the court. Mr. Pollock has filed a minority report, in which he refuses to concur with the other commissioners. Mr. Pollock holds that locked safety lamps are not necessary, and that the mine is not sufficiently gaseous to be dangerous.

MINE TROUBLE SERIOUSLY AFFECTS RIVER TRAFFIC DURING PRESENT MONTH

April has been a comparatively slow month for rivermen along the Monongahela river, owing to the coal strike, which has caused a discontinuance of the usual heavy traffic. Several mines have signed up agreement, but some have not started operations yet, and so far there has been little increase in the coal shipments, since the first of the month when the miners quit work.

January, February and March were heavy months in coal shipments through Lock No. 4 and gave evidence that this year was to be an exceptionally good one, if a long drawn out strike did not interfere. In January there were 15,158,000 bushels locked through Lock No. 4, in February, 16,524,000 bushels, and in March, 19,405,000. According to lock officials this month will fall far short of these good records

Not only has the strike caused the rivermen a period of inactivity but the southern markets cannot be supplied. In this way the trouble has been far reaching On the Ohio at the present time there is a good coal shipping stage but there is little coal to be taken out of the Pittsburg harbor Along the Monongahela river, which has the nine-foot stage the yea around, coal can be shipped at any time, but only at periods can the black diamonds be shipped from the P ittsburg harbor owing to the lack of improvements on the Ohio river.

NO PARADE ON THE DAY OF OPENING

Everything is nearly ready for the opening of the Charleroi Church league basbeall season next Monday evening, when the Catholics and Christians will meet. The game will be called at 6 o'clock and Umpire "Days" Lindsay will officiate with the indicator. Both teams are said to be in good shape, although the weather for the past week has somewhat interfered with practice. Capt. Furnier of the Christians and Manager-Captain J. K. Rickey of the Catholics have about decided upon the lineups, and the prospects are for an exciting struggle.

The second game of the season will be played on the following evening, between the Washington Avenue Presbyterians and Episcopals, and on Wednesday evening the Baptists and Methodists will meet, the game having been postponed from May 6. The game of May 9, the date on which the circus appears, has also been postponed.

There will be no parade preceding the first game, it being thought wise to call this off. W. D. Pollock has been elected vice president of the league to take the place of Kerfoot W. Daly who resigned.

At St. Jerome's church this morning at 8 45 o'clock with nuptial high mass, occurred the wedding of Miss Alice Riley, the daughter of Mrs. Mary Riley, of Lincoln avenue and William Turnbull, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Turnbull of Fallowfield avenue. Rev. W. D. Fries performed the ceremony, and the attendants were Miss Nora Riley, a sister of the bride, and Arthur Faulx. Soon after the wedding the couple were driven to the home of the bride's mother, where a wedding breakfast was served. The couple will go on a trip to Blairsvlile later where they will spend a few days. Upon their return they will take up their residence with the bride's mother. The bride is a well known Charleroi young lady and popular among a wide circle of acquainances. She was formerly employed in F. W. Woolworth's 5 and 10 cent store and while there gained many friends. Human Butterflies Perform in Great Forepaugh Circus.

The three Ty-Bell sisters, the most beautiful performers in the world and the most daring of aerialists, are presenting with the Great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Bros. shows this season the "Human Butterfly" act which created so much wonder in Europe last winter. During the recent tour of England, France and Germany they received the biggest salary which up to that time had never been paid for a single act.

Nothing like this act was ever seen before. Various inferior performances have masqueraded as aerial specialties, with the assistance of crude spectacular effects. They were merely common iron-jawed stunts of no interest whatever when analyzed. Holding by dental strength to slendor steelthreads, these Venus-like girls are elevated to the dome of the tent. By mean of invisible mechanism above them, they are made to fly, dart, piroute and circle like butterflies. They wear flowing angelic robes and have wings of fine spun glass. On these delicate backgounds of pure white, kaleidoscopic and pictorialeffects are accomplished by means of electric projectors and traveling spot lights.

Spectators sit amazed and bewildered by the irridescent splendor of the sight above them. At the same moment their blood tingles with suspense when they think of the danger of the act. It appeals not alone to morbid minds. It has a skill and a beauty about it that command profound attention.

In all there were 50 professional books, and 25 magazines, all dealing with features of educational work. The work has been continued by the teachers since the term opened, and thus far each teacher has read from 3 to 6 books or magazines, and studies them separately to derive the most benefit.

William Yee Yek the Chinaman shot Satruday night intends to be in his laundry on Sixth street on Saturday, unless there is some backset. Yee Yek was given somewhat of a backset yesterday morning by the report conveyed to him that his laundry had been robbed. When he learned that all the money had been returned, however, and the temporary excitement wore off, no ill effects upon his condition were noticeable.

THE SPECTACLE IS IMPRESSIVE

Charleroi Paper Protests Against a Republican Candidate on a Democratic Platform

REAL PRAISE FOR PENROSE

Cheerfully Independent Paper Issues Timely Warning on Politics—Senator Penrose Recovers From Mild Indisposition and Declares Pennsylvania Republicans Will Make Their Own Gubernatorial Nomination.

One of the most impressive political spectacles of modern times is that of a Beaver Valley Republican asking the voters of that section to send him as their representative to the American congress because he has declared himself against protection and United States Senator Penrose As a fact Protection and Penrose are synonymous terms with the average Pennsylvanian and to be against one would necessarily force the Beaver Valley candidate to be against both An appeal against protection in any congressional district in Pennsylvania is not likely to be much of a rallying cry, but such an appeal particularly in that congressional district where almost every man, woman and child in every section of the several counties in the district are indebted almost beyond estimate for protection advantages sounds much like a boogy song designed only to frighten timid children The anti-tariff and anti-Penrose platform of the ambitious candidate from the Beaver Valley region has provoked the wrath of all or nearly all the papers in that particular section regardless of politics Probably the most emphatic protest against the raw Democratic platform of the office-hunting Republican who represents the retired faction in his district is proclaimed by the Charleroi "Mail," one of the bright publications of the Beaver and Monongahela valleys Here is the "Mail's" estimate of the Republican candidate on his ridiculous Democratic platform:

"Had this candidate been in Congress the extra session when the tariff bill was considered and passed in accordance with President Taft's pledges and the avowed policy of the Republican party, he would have stood out in opposition agair the action of his Pennsylvania Republican colleagues on the tariff, and the almost unanimous sentiment of his constituency of the district, regardless of party affiliations In other words, he is presumably a free trader opposed to any protection to American industry

"'Penroseism' whatever that may be, is another issue against which this gentleman is arrayed. When Senator Penrose devoted his entire energies day and night for the preservation of the Pennsylvania industries and the protection that has built them up and kept the wheels of industry revolving he earned the expressed gratitude of all interests in the State Even Lewis Emery, Jr., who had been a bitter political enemy of Senator Penrose, worked hand in glove with the former in the interests of the oil industry As Mr. Emery represents the independent oil interests as opposed to the Standard, he emphasized the importance of protection for the independent producers which is essential to their preservation

"Senator Penrose's activity in behalf of the Pennsylvania industries was highly appreciated by the entire laboring and industrial interests of the State"

"No matter what other states want," the "Mail" concludes, "Pennsylvania wants its industries to keep on moving."

There are distinct indications that the effort now making at Washington to take the tariff entirely out of politics will be successful This will be distinctly in line with the policy of the President It will make room for the President's tariff board and will likely be a death blow to a few demagogues and sycophants

The "Connellsville Courier," the recognized organ of the great army of coke workers of Pennsylvania and cheerfully independent in its politics warns its readers against Democracy, which the paper calls "the party of opportunity" The "Courier" says

"The Republican party is not without error, not without sin, not without a capacity for blundering, not without members who would sacrifice principle for power; but with all its weaknesses and all its faults, the party of the martyred Lincoln and McKinley has enunciated and defended doctrines which have preserved the union and promoted the prosperity of the whole people in a remarkable degree.

"Above all, no Republican voter should be deceived by high-sounding talk about Democratic reform Democratic politicians are no better than Republican politicians, and most of them are infinitely worse. The Democratic party of today has no principles worth mentioning. It is like a ship without a rudder It is blown [illegible] by the proclamation of a thrice-rejected Presidential ambition"

In announcing his retirement from public life Eugene Hale, United States senator from Maine, and one of the most conspicuous figures in American life, writes a letter to the Maine Republicans which is general in character and meaning and bears directly upon the people of every State in the union Senator Hale says:

"It is furthermost important that Maine should send four Republican representatives to the next congress to avoid what may be the critical trial day for all Maine's industries and her business prosperity Should the Democrats carry the next house or representatives within 90 days after the opening of the next congress a free tariff bill will be sent to the senate in which Maine's principal industries and interests will be marked for slaughter Whoever recalls the situation under the Morrison bill and later under the Gorman-Wilson bill will fully realize this And this disaster to Maine can only be prevented by the Republicans retaining control in the next house of representatives To this end a full Republican delegation from Maine in the next congress will be needed more than ever before and to secure this result all my sympathy and efforts are at the command of the party."

It will be recalled that Senator Hale stood fast and earnestly with Senator Penrose and others in forcing the conditions which restored prosperity in America. His warning, therefore, should have great weight

The Republicans of Pennsylvania will hear with pleasure that Senator Penrose, who had been sick for a week in Washington, is much improved. Before leaving for his Philadelphia home last week Senator Penrose said that the Republicans of Pennsylvania were entirely able to work out their own political salvation. He had not, he said, been consulted about the candidate to be nominated for governor by the Pennsylvania Republicans at their State convention in Harrisburg on June 22. That disposition, more than any other element in the character of Senator Penrose has endeared him to the Pennsylvania Republicans He has always been delighted to take the orders of his party

WOMEN ARE WOMEN.

A Rather Roundabout Way to Prove the Proposition.

Men say women are angels; women say women are cats Let us pause a moment and reason upon this thing.

If women are angels—however, that does not seem to be the proper starting point. Let us try again

If angels are cats—but, no; that is hardly reasonable, for angels have wings, and cats do not fly. We must begin again.

If women are cats—but that isn't possible, for cats do not talk, and how could a dumb animal express an opinion in words of a woman? Whatever cats may think, they never say a word about a woman, while women—well, women are not cats.

Now let us return to the first proposition.

If women are angels, they wouldn't say women are cats. Angels don't talk that way.

Once upon a time a man married a woman. He said she was an angel; the women said she was a cat. Happy man, not to know the difference between an angel and a cat!

Men say women are angels, and by this token women say angels are cats. Therefore, angels being cats, cats must be angels, and, both being the same, women are women.

Which is precisely what they are.—W. J. Lampton in Lippincott's.

TERRORS OF THE JUNGLE.

The Mosquitoes of Africa Are Worse Than the Lions.

"The African mosquitoes intoxicate you. They inject so much poison into you that you are dazed, your eyes roll and you stagger and speak thickly In a word, you're drunk," said a missionary

"In the Nyassa country I'd always start getting ready for bed and the mosquitoes an hour before sunset. I'd set up my mosquito net with the utmost care. I'd clamp down its edges with valises and boxes. I'd light inside it three green wood fires, filling it with a bitter smoke that all insects are supposed to loathe.

"Finally I'd get in myself. I'd smoke big pipes of the black native tobacco, and I'd long miserably in that hot, smoky atmosphere for the dawn.

"Despite all my precautions quite 200 or 300 mosquitoes would get inside my net as soon as darkness fell. They were like a whirlwind in there. It couldn't have been worse. Their noise and their nipping made me feverish—made me really delirious at times.

"At last, in exhaustion, I'd get a few hours of troubled sleep, awakening for breakfast drunk from the poison injected by hundreds of tiny needles into my veins.

"No; it isn't the elephants or the giraffes that trouble the African hunter, but the skeeters."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Mendicant.

There are those who ascribe the word "mendicant" to the silly appellation put forth as a conundrum, meaning a poor wretch beyond the power of mending. But something very close to the term was in use as long ago as when Chaucer wrote his "Canterbury Tales." In the "Sompnoure's Tale" this occurs.

Therefore we "mendiants," we sely freres,
Ben wedded to poverte and continence,
To [illegible]
etc.

The "sompnoure" of Chaucer was, of course, a summoner, or apparitor, and a person of low estate, and here we have, it is believed, the origin of the word, which came into common employment later.

Respectfully submitted this 15th day of April, A. D. 1910.

HARRY HORMELL,
Auditors.

To the Voters of Washington and Greene Counties:

I am not unmindful of the fact that the people of this country today demand of their public officials a high standard of service—that they want men to represent THEM. They are tired and disgusted with the system of politics which makes a man in public office entirely subservient to the dictates of a boss or a machine. They are unwilling longer to take a man for public office simply because he wears a certain party label. They demand the election of men to public office who as individuals possess the character to stand by them irrespective of any party affiliations, of any machine, and particularly of any interests.

The greatest public question today relates to the efficiency and integrity of administration. It is no one-section question, whether the people shall be imposed upon or not; it is an issue of justice and human rights everywhere that can be no more ignored than a conflagration. Recognizing this condition and being in sympathy myself with the desires of the people, I want to say to the voters, to you whom I ask for support, that if nominated and elected I WILL SERVE faithfully the interests of my constituents.

I submit my record in public, political and business life as a guarantee of this. I point to the fact as an evidence of my sympathy with the Progressive Movement for better things in politics and legislation, that I have always been opposed to machines and and to bosses. My whole political activity has been devoted to fighting this system of political domination. Everything I have secured has been by fighting against, rather than fighting for, machines and bosses. This is my record. It is known to the voters of this senatorial district and it is the best evidence I can give that in the future you will find me fighting a system of politic swhich does not represent the people directly.

If nominated and elected State Senator in this district I will go to Harrisburg free from all entangling alliances, political, corporate, or of any nature whatsoever. I will be free to give my attention and best endeavors to legislation which will be for the benefit of all classes, the farmer, the merchant, the miner, the laboring men of all classes, the man who earns his bread by the sweat of his brow, and also the man of capital.

I speak freely and openly on this question because I recognize the fact that the people today feel their responsibility and will not elect any man to office in whom they cannot trust their interests. I hope to not only follow the people in their efforts along this line, but as a representative in the highest legislative body in this Commonwealth and of the best constituency of the Commonwealth, to help to lead the people to a higher standard of legislation and governmental policy. I am a progressive Republican. I believe in the fundamental principles of that party and am in hearty sympathy with every movement which has for its object the raising of the standard of political morality and the enactment of legislation which will be honestly for the people's interests.

I am, very truly yours,

John W. Hallam.

FOR CONGRESS

JOHN K. TENER

OF CHARLEROI

Subject to the Decision of the Republican Voters of the Twenty-Fourth District at the Primaries June 4

McShane's Platform.

"Charlie" McShane, of Lincoln Park, Allegheny county, who is well known in and a frequent visitor to Charleroi because of his connection with the Catholic Total Abstinence Union, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for State Senate of the Forty-fourth district at the June primaries. Mr. McShane is a lawyer, a newspaper man and an ardent worker in the temperance cause as well as for everything in the way of civic improvement. His attitude on the temperance question is positive and pronounced, and on the issue of local option he expresses himself, in case he is nominated and elected, thusly:

If local option should beome a question in the next Legislature I will support a township, borough or ward local option bill as this will give the people the right to remonstrate by their vote for or against the saloon in residential sections, as well as a slow education of the people on this subject; and will be fair to the saloon keeper. As it will take many years to eradicate the saloon entirely, and as the wave grows in strength, the liquor man can safeguard himself by saving the money that he puts into improvements—or start in some other business, so that when the temperance wave reaches him his financial interests will be safe.

Mr. McShane has been an active and consistent temperance worker all his life and never has, like former Congresman E. F. Acheson, dealt with the liquor interests for political or personal advancement. When Mr. Acheson was assisting and consenting to the repeal of the special prohibitory act of Monongahela and Carroll township, which added fourteen more saloons to the county, Mr. McShane was helping to organize and promote Catholic Total Abstinence Unions throughout the Pittsburg diocese. His views on local option are sound and logical, and meet with the approval of a majority of the people. Mr. McShane is clear sighted enough to recognize actual conditions, and to realize that temperance, like any other social movement, is a matter of evolution, and that a community cannot be made any better by legislation than the people who compose it.

Lost Opportunity.

With a boating stage in the Ohio river, and no coal in the Pittsburg habror to go out on account of the strike, an opportunity is lost to this district that may have a deteriorating effect the whole year. Should the season be a dry one as weather sharps are predicting, the mines along the river, even after they do start, may be idle a large portion of the time for want of a boating stage in the Ohio. It all depends upon the vagaries of the weather.

All this emphasizes the importance of the canalizing of the Ohio river, and its relation to the industrial and commercial life of this community. With a boating stage from Pittsburg to Cairo the delay this month would only be incidental; now it is vital, and because of it local industry stands a chance of being hampered the balance of the summer and fall. There is no help for it now, but the situation shows most clearly how important it is to continue the river improvement policy on the Ohio inaugurated by the present Congress.

Government by Commission.

With the spread of the Des Moines and Galveston plans of government by commission and the adoption of the plan in various forms by over seventy cities in the United States, the prediction is made that it will in due course of time be universally adopted as the model form of municipal government. By it graft, corruption and practical politics are eliminted, and the business of the cities are conducted on purely business principles at a great saving to the taxpayers and a corresponding gain in puplic efficiency to the people. The recent experience with the wholesale grafting on the part of Pittsburg councilmen has given an impetus to the government by commission plan in Pennsylvania, and it will not be long before there will be widespread agitation for an amendment to the constitution to permit the adoption of the plan.

The Des Moies plan is the simplest and most Democratic method of government ever devised. Five men are elected to conduct the city government, one of whom is mayor. The people have the right by vote to oust any of them, or to compel them to enact certain measures, or to veto them. Everything is up to the people, and it a government by popular sentiment. It will soon become as universal as the secret ballot, which was first advocated in this country by the late Henry George in the '80's.

ELECTRIC SPARKS

Having definitely settled the question, "What is whisky," the government is now taking up the investigation of "what is wine?" Wine is a mocker.

Washington is to have a centennial this fall and Charleroi is to have a big celebration the Fourth of July. With these and the murder trials going on in the county this year, there should not be lack of excitement.

We never saw a moving picture house yet that moved, unless you class a tent show as a house.

A meteor fell in Mexico and caused a forest fire. Another one on the comet.

The weather as a matter of course broke records this week by having it freezing cold at Atlanta, Ga., and at the same time more than summer-like in New Foundland. The comet of course.

The Democrats are winning a few things in a few States. Possibly by reason of the comet.

We were supposed to have rain—no, snow—no, warm weather, but the weather man changed his mind and give us a litttle comet.

Wonder if a fellow would emigrate to Brewster county, Texas, where there isn't a single town shown on the map, if he would run into labor quarrels?

Ever know of a High School class in your life in a small town, whose members shopped at home, for graduation?

The most difficult question the newspapers are trying to answer nowadays, is "What is Cannonism?"

A play "A Box of Monkeys," will be presented at Bentleyville Saturday. It will probably be the nearest the town will ever get to a circus.

Even the gayest people have to call a halt sometimes.

Certain things will not go anywhere. For instance a stubborn gas engine.

A Useless Invention.

"This new collection box," argued the inventor, "has some unique advantages. When you drop in a quarter or more it doesn't make a sound. Drop in a dime and it tinkles a bell, a nickel blows a whistle, and a penny fires a shot. And when you don't drop in anything the box takes your picture."

"No, thanks," said the pastor wearily; "I already have pictures of my entire congregation."—Louisville Herald.

CHARLES N. HASKELL.

politics. He was a member of the Ohio legislature and once made a campaign for governor of his native state. In 1901 he removed to Muskogee, I. T., and hung out his shingle as a lawyer. He soon gave up his law practice and engaged in railroad building and other construction work. He is a man of some means and has never shown a disposition to antagonize wealth. He insists, however, that public service corporations must pay their fair share of taxes. Mr. Haskell was a member of the Oklahoma constitutional convention and in 1907 was elected the first governor of the new state.

Salad Rolls.

Materials.—One dozen fresh Parker House rolls, one cupful of cold chicken, one cupful of chopped celery and enough mayonnaise to mix well.

Way of Preparing.—Open the rolls and scoop out a pocket in each. Brush with butter and run in the oven for a few minutes. Cool and fill with a mixture of the other ingredients. Place on a bread plate and garnish with fringed celery.—National Food Magazine.

Some Consolation.

A detective once said it was all wrong to suppose that the professional housebreaker works with coolness and calculation. On the contrary, he usually works in terror and haste, takes too much swag from one room and too little from another and sometimes overlooks the silver in carrying off the electro.—London Saturday Review.

MISSED ONE POINT.

The Lady Told Him What More He Could Have Said.

"I am going to tell you the truth about yourself," he said.

"Go on," said the young and ambitious actress.

"I have in my time had rare opportunities to observe beautiful, graceful and talented women, and I violate no confidence in saying that you are the queen of them all. You unite in your lovely person that peculiar magnetism which lays audiences at your feet. Your genius, shining through all the deficiencies of stagecraft, enables you to triumph over every obstacle. So supreme are you that you have the right to rise above all conventionalities, to marry, to love, to discard whom you please, and no one will dare to criticise. Your work will live. You are the very personification of the highest art. United with this your perfection of beauty gives you the just title to a lasting fame."

"Is all that true?" she asked softly.

"Absolutely. Would you have me say more? What more could I say?"

She sighed.

"You might," she answered, "have mentioned my clothes and my figure."—Puck.

Disinterested.

Lord Monboddo, an eminent member of the Scotch judiciary and one of the clear cut figures in Boswell's immortal "Life of Johnson," was a great beau in his youth and in his later years a brilliant and learned if whimsical man.

He was a friend of the Garricks and one day was their guest at their villa at Hampton Court when Hannah More was also visiting there. They were walking together in the garden when his lordship astonished the fair and sprightly Hannah by a declaration of love and an offer of his heart and hand. Meeting with a positive refusal, he soon returned to the house and made a clean breast of it to Mrs. Garrick.

"I am very sorry for this refusal," he said in conclusion. "I should have liked so much to teach that nice girl Greek."

Our Languages.

What a lot of languages we talk, even if we talk only English! I was assailed by a man across the luncheon table with a language about a cup tie final and confessed that it was quite unintelligible. Then another man talked about golf, which is another language. And then the woman's language elbows these columns. "The Countess —— wore a sea green cloth skirt with a bolero of the same color and a white marabou stole, and a black taffeta bow garnished her huge hat of burnt tagel straw." It is a fine example of women's slang. But to the man it means nothing—but expense.—London Outlook.

SLIP FOR A BABY.

It Is in One Piece and Has Two Seams and Is Easily Made.

A charming slip for a baby that is in every sense of the word a "one piece frock" is made after an admirable pattern. The little garment is cut out from one piece of material, a round hole cut out for the neck and an opening down the back for four or five inches to allow the slip to go over the baby's head.

There are two seams, from the hem of the frock to the wrist of the sleeve, one on each side.

This pattern may be used for any material. A slip of finest white nainsook was made after this model. Around the neck was a narrow band of hand embroidery—a spray of forgetmenots and tiny leaves in fine white mercerized thread—brierstitched to the frock. The sleeves were trimmed in the same manner at the wrist, and both neck and sleeves were finished with a frill of fine narrow lace.

A panel was outlined both back and front by a scroll design of forgetmenots and French knots running from the hem in front over the shoulders to the hem in back.

A three inch hem brierstitched finished the slip, and it was fastened down the back with tiny pearl ball buttons.

A cap was made to be worn with this slip, and it was of fine white lawn embroidered all around the edge with a scroll of tiny forgetmenots, and the same blossoms were scattered all over the entire surface. The edge was scalloped and buttonholed and finished with a frill of lace gathered to the underside of the bonnet. This made a soft frame for the baby face.

A lining of thin forgetmenot blue silk and one of shell pink came with the bonnet and two sets of huge rosettes of soft satin ribbon, one of blue and one of shell pink. The rosettes were fastened to the bonnet over each ear, and a single piece of ribbon went under the chin and fastened under a rosette with a tiny gold safety pin.

When the blue rosettes were worn they brought out the blue of the baby's eyes, and the pink ones heightened the color of the soft little face.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

To prevent stiffness of the muscles and joints they should be frequently rubbed with oil.

Hairdressers say that the hair must be worn flat on top and very broad at the sides and back. The low, broad forehead is the effect which must be attained to be fashionable.

For red hands a good lotion consisting of honey one ounce, lemon juice one ounce and eau de cologne one ounce will both soften and whiten the hands and may be applied with benefit at night just before going to bed.

Obnoxious as it may seem to many, nevertheless the eating of onions will make a noticeable change in the complexion because onions contain a certain per cent of arsenic, the same as lettuce. The onion is naturally soporific and induces sleep when eaten at night without harmful results. Lettuce has the same effect if not eaten with vinegar.

Choking and strangling on liquids are somewhat similar, yet the former is more dangerous. If a baby merely strangles on milk, quickly raise one arm above its head and draw the arm tightly. This overcomes the trouble at once. It sometimes relieves choking when caused by food, but a slap on the back between the shoulders will more quickly dislodge any food in the throat.

In the summer season it is not uncommon for persons going into the woods to be poisoned by contact with dogwood, ivy or the poison oak. The severe itching and smarting which are thus produced may be relieved by first washing the parts with a solution of saleratus, two teaspoonfuls to a pint of water, and then applying cloths with extract of hamamelis. Take a dose of epsom salts internally or a double rochelle powder. The cure is immediate.

Mrs. Taft's Cow Still Favored.

Mrs. Taft's cow continues to graze peacefully on the White House lawn, notwithstanding the national astonishment and some sly ridicule. The president's wife has her convictions, and one of them is that if you want good milk and cream you must keep your moolley and keep it in condition by the most recent scientific teachings. Thomas Jefferson used to keep blooded cows on the White House lawn because he could not abide any milk except that which came from his own stock. Lincoln kept several cows, but until Mrs. Taft purchased a blue ribbon Jersey a cow had not been seen near the White House in forty-five years.

If You Wish to Be Popular—

Don't contradict people even if you are sure you are right.

Don't be inquisitive about the affairs of even your most intimate friend.

Don't underrate anything because you don't possess it.

Don't believe that everybody else in the world is happier than you.

Don't declare that you have never had any opportunities in life.

Don't believe all the evil you hear.

Scour the Irons.

One point in which the novice in ironing often falls lies in not having the irons perfectly clean before beginning work. To do really good work begin by scouring the irons thoroughly with soap and water; then dry thoroughly with a soft rag. They must not be dried on the fire, as this creates an immediate rust, which works off on the clothes.

FATAL CUPIDITY.

A Tragic Case of Treasure Hunting in Egypt.

A certain Egyptian native discovered the entrance of a tomb in the floor of his stable and at once proceeded to worm his way down the tunnel This was the end of the man His wife, finding that he had not returned two hours or so later, went down the newly found tunnel after him That was the end of her also In turn three other members of the family went down into the darkness, and that was the end of them

A native official was then called, and lighting his way with a candle, penetrated down the winding passage The air was so foul that he was soon obliged to retreat, but he stated that he was just able to see in the distance ahead the bodies of the unfortunate peasants, all of whom had been overcome by what he quaintly described as "the evil lighting and bad climate" Various attempts at the rescue of the bodies having failed, we gave orders that this tomb should be regarded as their sepulcher and that its mouth should be sealed up

According to the natives there was evidently a vast hoard of wealth stored at the bottom of this tomb, and the would be robbers had met their death at the hands of the demon in charge of it who had seized each man by the throat as he came down the tunnel and had strangled him—A. E P. Weigall in Putnam's

Landsman and Sailor.

To the landsman the sea must always possess dangers that to the sailor appear only normal phenomena upon which to exercise his skill The prayer book has a special petition for the safety of those who go down to the sea in ships and every one who returns to leave the shore goes forth with a consciousness of awe at his own daring Yet in the intricate complexity of modern civilization safety on land and safety at sea have walked by no means with equal step Every morning brings us some story of death or accident on land, while the great passenger ships come and go in monotonous regularity, bringing no reports more stirring than those of high seas that have kept them from making new records With the present madness for speed and its attendant recklessness our streets demand constant alertness if one would cross them with safety. Speed at sea has come through larger and more stoutly constructed ships. So the familiar old story of the sailorman at sea in a storm who serene in his consciousness of ample sea room, piously ejaculated, "God help the poor folks ashore tonight!" is not wholly fantastic—L Frank Tooker in Century

Eccentric Count Bertrand.

Count Bertrand, who lived in Paris, was a very eccentric man, and to one of his eccentricities he ascribed his long life. Once a year he would betake himself to bed and stay there for three months On these occasions he would see no one but his servant, who brought him his meals and even him he forbade to speak Just before the Germans began the siege of Paris the count went to bed and the servant, true to his instructions, said nothing of the events going on around him One day the bread proved so bad the count demanded an explanation, whereby, of course, he learned that Paris was encompassed by the enemy. Springing out of bed, the count paced the floor, repeating, "What should a Bertrand do under such circumstances?" Suddenly he stopped, exclaiming, "We should go to bed!" and to bed he went and stayed there until the siege was over.

ORIENTAL SERVANTS.

All Around Ability of the Indispensable "Boy" In India.

In these days of loud wailing about the haughty domestic exorbitant wages and small returns it is soothing to recall the efficiency and submissive service of the oriental servant.

In India the indispensable "boy" does everything—"boy" being a generic name regardless of age or native dignity—receiving in remuneration the equivalent of $12 to $14 a month at the most He buys your railroad tickets, checks your luggage, settles the clamors of luggage coolies, gives your tips and shoos away the hordes of beggars, telegraphs to hotels for your rooms and takes care of them when you get there, makes the bed brings the afternoon tea, stands behind your chair at table and serves you brings your account when you leave and wrangles for you over its inevitable extortions

At the dak bungalows he forages for your meals and, if necessary cooks them He produces washmen sewing men and all sorts of dealers in everything on demand He makes up your bed on sleeping cars and replenishes your supply of ice and soda He runs your errands cleans your boots and hats darns your stockings and mends your clothes

When you walk abroad, he attends you and directs you to the bazaars where you will be robbed least, receiving his commission later from an appreciative proprietor.

For every rupee intrusted to him for general expenditure he renders an account, and though he doubtless robs you gently he does not let others do it (and it is distinctly advantageous to be robbed by one person rather than a score).

He is silent and noiseless, salaams whenever you speak to him and never enters your presence with his shoes on or his turban off

And finally, his multifarious day ended, he wraps himself in his shawl and sleeps across your threshold.—New York Tribune.

A FALSE ECONOMY.

The Housewife Who Boils Her Window Shades.

Here is a new one for the frugally minded housewife.

"Whenever I have old window shades which have become too soiled to put up again," writes a housewife in a certain magazine for women, "I take them off the rollers, give them a thorough boiling, then wash and dry and iron the same and"—now listen to this; they don't turn out to be piano scarfs or mantel drapes or even little girls' petticoats, but says this careful person—"I have excellent cloths, which are good for dusting, cleaning windows or drying cut glass" Now, will you listen to that—"excellent dust cloths"—and how would you like the task of boiling up a lot of old window shades? 'Twould be a pleasant undertaking, wouldn't it?

There can be no question that the effort to economize is in every way commendable and dear knows, rare enough in these days of prodigality, but there is a limit past which economy ceases to be a virtue.

There are women with whom economy has become almost a mania

Doubtless she of the boiled window shades is suffering from such a malady, else she wouldn't be boiling up her old shades to make dusters when she ought to be standing in front of her looking glass curling her front hair or sitting down and studying her Sunday school lesson

But this is only one example of the false economy that saves and makes over to poor purpose Economy is doubtless a poor name for this particular sort of thing. It is, in truth, more of an overpowering desire to make something out of nothing, which generally ends in exactly the other, very much the other way about

Old dresses made over at great labor and expense and leftover food reheated with more eggs and butter than a new dish would be worth are examples of this same mania, which possesses many a good woman

Song of the Pirate.

A pirate a pirate a pirate I will be!
In stormy ways
I'll spend my days—
A pirate's life for me!
Upon the main
I'll look for gain
I'll sail the broad seas o'er
I'll store my hold with gold and then
I'll make the people tremble when
They see me come ashore!

A pirate a pirate, a pirate bold am I:
Where people shriek
On decks that reek
I'll swing my cutlass high!
I'll swiftly sail
Before the gale
I'll sweep the stormy sea
And when the day's dark work is done
I'll reef my sails and meekly run
To kneel at mother's knee
—S. E. Kiser in New York Tribune.

Dean Swift's Retort.

A DEAD STOMACH
Of What Use Is It?

Thousands? yes hundreds of thousands of people throughout America are taking the slow death treatment daily.

They are murdering their own stomach, the best friend they have and in their sublime ignorance they think they are putting aside the laws of nature.

This is no sensational statement; it is a startling fact, the truth of which any honorable physician will not deny.

These thousands of people are swallowing daily huge quantities of pepsin and other strong digesters made especially to digest the food in the stomach without any aid at all from the digestive membrane of the stomach.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets relieve distressed stomach in five minutes, they do more. Taken regularly for a few weeks they build up the run down stomach and make it strong enough to digest its own food. Then indigestion, belching, sour stomach and headache will go.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets are sold by druggists everywhere and by Piper Bros. who guarantees them. 50 cents a box.

Creditors' Adjustment Sale

Entire Stock to be Sold by the Saville Salvage Company of Pittsburg

We bought too heavily. That's where the trouble started. Expecting a much heavier business than usual, we confess that we used poor judgement in overstocking ourselves But Easter came too early and the weather, as everyone knows, was unseasonable, with the inevitable result that our shelves and counters are filled to overflowing with thousand's of dollars' worth of brand new merchandise If we could only get a few week's of grace we could do the business at the usual profit. But the creditors have given us time before and will no longer wait for their money. That is the situation that stares us in the face. We simply must raise the money and for this purpose the creditors have agreed to sell the stock for ten days and secure their money. It is no question of profits. It is a life and death struggle to pay off our indebtedness rather than being forced to the wall. We are bending every energy and resource at our command to pay the bills We have made the most extensive preparation both in the advertising and the handling of the crowds of any sale of any kind that has heretofore been conducted in this town, to our knowledge. It will pay you to come miles to secure these values, that will go actually at less than the cost of making.

Free Fare To Sale

On purchases of $1.50 street car fare will be paid up to 5 miles---on purchases of $5.00 fare up to 25 miles.

Don't compare this sale with sales you have probably attended in the past. It is a sale conducted by the Saville Salvage Company of Pittsburg, a legitimate and bonafide smashing out of every article in a clearance conducted by ourselves with the help of our creditors. For this reason and because of the ridiculously little prices asked for the new, staple goods there is bound to be a storm of competition Do not be surprised to see the town plastered with sale signs of every color under the sun Be sure you see the BIG BLUE SIGN with the words CREDITOR'S ADJUSTMENT SALE before you enter. Bring this advertisement with you and ask for the prices listed. Remember we positively guarantee you a saving, not on ten or fifteen articles, BUT ON EVERY ONE IN THE ENTIRE STORE. Even after you have bought, if you find you can bear our prices anywhere—a very slim chance indeed—all you have to do is to bring back the goods and demand your money. A single glance inside this store will show how the crowds will jam a sale if the values are as advertised If you find the doors closed, be patient, as we will do the best we can. An extra large staff of experienced salespeople will wait on you and the doors will be opened as quickly as possible Kindly bear in mind that no goods will be sold to children or sold on credit.

Sale Opens Friday, April 29th, 1910, at 10 A. M. Sharp.

These prices represent but a comparatively few of the thousands of Bargains at the store. Lack of space prevents their being given here. We are forced to raise the cash and save our good name rather than keep the goods with failure staring us in the face.

THE PILLORY.

An English Writer's Reflections Upon Public Punishment.

Perhaps one of the few really democratic institutions ever created was the pillory. I do not say that it was a humane institution, though it was certainly more humane than our system of silent imprisonment. But being humane has nothing to do with being democratic. You may have humane and inhumane democracies, just as you may have humane and inhumane despots.

The point is that the pillory was a real appeal to the people. If it was cruel it was because the people were cruel or perhaps justly indignant. The people threw dead cats (the less humanitarian, I believe, threw live cats) but they could throw bouquets and crowns of laurel if they liked. Sometimes they did. The argument about the old public punishments cuts both ways. The publicity was an additional risk for the government as well as an additional risk for the prisoner, and this is specially true of the executions for treason. It was no small thing that half a million men might possibly treat as a martyr a man whom the king was treating as a murderer, that the prince had to concede to every obscure ruffian exactly what that ruffian probably wanted most—fame.—G. K. Chesterton in London News.

A Skeleton In Every Closet.

The expression "There is a skeleton in every closet" is said to have its origin in the fact that a soldier once wrote to his mother, who complained of her unhappiness, to have some sewing done for him by some one who had no cares or troubles. At last the mother found a woman who seemed to have no troubles, but when she told her business the woman took her to a closet containing a skeleton and said: "Madam, I try to keep my troubles to myself, but every night I am compelled by my husband to kiss this skeleton, who was once his rival. Think you, then, I can be happy?"

COLOR WORDS.

Red Seems to Be the Favorite With Most of the Great Writers.

Upon tabulation the words used by Shakespeare referring to colors it is revealed that out of every hundred color words thirty may be classed as red. Next follow twenty-two white, twenty black, seventeen yellow, seven green and only four blue. Thus Shakespeare's favorite color word was red, and investigation will show that this is the characteristic color of nearly all great writers. Per instance, it is the color word most often employed by Tennyson.

In all great works of human interest red predominates, as it is the color of the very strongest of our passions and impulses—the color of hot blood. There is no color so warm, so full of joy and life, so overflowing with vitality.

Red is the color of glowing iron—of heat and passion. In nature red hastens the growth of trees, while at the same time it quickens all rotting and decay. Plans grown under red glass will grow four times as quickly as under white light, and grow to four times their usual height.

Red in excess has an evil effect. For example, an excess of red light makes one irritable and nervous. In excess red produces homicidal mania—the desire to kill. The effect of red upon various animals is well known, it having the power of enraging the bull, the tiger and the turkey.—London Scraps

The Bishop's Visit.

Bishop (who has "looked in" at rural Sunday school—Now, children, can any of you tell what is meant by the visitation of the bishop? Little Girl (after a long pause)—Please, sir, an affliction sent from heaven.—London Telegraph.

The Great Change.

"Tommy," said the teacher of the juvenile class, "when water becomes ice, what is the great change that takes place?"

"The change in price," replied Tommy.—Exchange.

Why the Whistle Howled.

Passenger (on branch line)—Say, why does the engine always set up such a piteous howl at this particular spot? Guard—Ah! It was here the engineer first met his wife.—Kansas City Journal

The Poor Woman.

"He climbed almost to the top of the ladder—and then fell off."

"What was the trouble?"

"There was a woman at the bottom of it."—Life.

ANCIENT POISON LORE

Some Obscure Facts Revealed by Study of Toxicology.

THE PENALTY OF THE PEACH.

A Document of Antiquity That Shows the Egyptians Knew How to Make and Use Prussic Acid—The Poisons of Ancient Greece and Rome.

In the mythology of Greece there was a somber saga which declared that in the far north, later described as Colchis, there dwelt some sorcerers—children of the sun. Of these Hecate posssessed vast knowledge of poisonous herbs; which passed to her daughter Medea, who administered drugs to that dragon which guarded the Golden Fleece and urged Jason to gladiator-like achievements.

Menes, one of the oldest of the Egyptian kings, and Attalus Phylometer, the last king of Pergemus, undoubtedly possessed wide knowledge of medicinal plants. Attalus Phylometer compounded medicines and experimented with poisons. He was familiar with hyoscyamus, aconite, veratrum, conium and others.

Mithradates Eupator went further than either of these, however, as he prepared the famous mixture theriaca, composed of fifty-four ingredients, and which in later days sold at a great price. There is further evidence of the chemical knowledge of the Egyptians as disclosed in embalming and various technical works.

The most interesting feature of the poison lore of Egypt, however, is the fact that the Egyptians were acquainted with prussic acid, one of the most deadly poisons. They distilled it from certain plants and trees, notably the peach. In the Louvre there is an ancient Egyptian papyrus on which has been deciphered:

"Pronounce not the name of I. A. O. under the penalty of the peach."

This is supposed to be a death warning to those who might be tempted to reveal mysteries in connection with the religious rites of the priests.

It is certain that the Romans learned of prussic acid from the Egyptians, for history has it that in the reign of Tiberius a Roman knight accused of treason drank poison and fell dead at the feet of the senators.

In ancient Greece poison was the favorite method of capital punishment and suicide, and it is of interest that self destruction was considered by the Greeks as an exemplary means of freeing the soul from the body. Valerius Maximus relates that he "saw a woman of quality in the island of Ceos who, having lived happily for ninety years, obtained leave to take a poisonous draft, lest by living longer she should happen to have a change in her good fortune."

Nicander of Colophon (204-138 B. C.) wrote the most ancient works extant on the subject of poisons. In one treatise he described the effects of snake venom, in another he considered the properties of opium, henbane, certain fungi, colchicum, aconite and conium and recommended antidotes for them.

Dioscorides (40-90 A. D.) described the effects of cantharides, sulphate of copper, mercury, lead and arsenic. He described poisons under three heads—animal poisons, poisons from plants and mineral poisons.

Poison lore—"poison-lehre," as it was long called—was considered a forbidden subject for many ages. Galen in his work "On Antidotes" remarks that the only authors who dared to write of poisons were Orpheus, Theologus, Morus, Mendesius the younger, Heliodorus of Athens, Aratus and a few others. Unfortunately none of their treatises is now in existence.

The sacred writings of India show that the art of poisoning was used for suicide, robbery and revenge, and here we learn that the original cattle poisoners lived in India. The Asiatics knew arsenic, aconite, opium and other poisons.

The ancient Hebrews were acquainted with certain poisons, and "rosch" and "chema" seem to have been the words used as general terms for poison.

The death of Socrates, Demosthenes, Hannibal and Cleopatra testify to the pharmaceutical knowledge of the ancients. Phrysa poisoned the Queen Statira in the reign of Artaxerxes II. (B. C. 405-359) by cutting food with a poisoned knife.

The professional poisoners arose early in the Christian era. It is recorded that Agrippina (A. D. 26) refused to eat apples at the table of her father-in-law Tiberius through fear of poison.—New York Times.

How We Change.

"Did you notice that woman's expression just then?" queried a traveler on an elevated train, and he pointed to a handsomely gowned woman whom the exigencies of transportation had placed directly opposite an aged and not too clean man. The old man was about to conceal a big red handkerchief.

"That old fellow," continued the traveler, "just took a pinch of snuff and took it vigorously, and the operation appeared to give the woman nausea. Disgust was written all over her face. Think of it! A habit condemned universally by refinement today and once the habit of king, courtier and social exquisite. The jeweled snuff-box—what a treasure it was! And now—well, we do change, don't we?"—New York Globe.

The taxidermist makes an honorable living at a skin game.—Philadelphia Record.
